How to Profit from PLR Content

When it comes to making money online, private label rights content is undoubtedly one of the best time-savers that can help increase your bottom line. What other resource offers a complete product that you can start earning money from almost immediately? Not many!

If you are not yet familiar with this valuable resource, private label rights content (PLR for short) is written material that you can buy and use as if you wrote it yourself. Most often you can change the material, insert your own comments and ideas, delete entire sections, add pictures or diagrams, change the title, and more.

Some PLR content does have usage restrictions, so be sure to check the terms of the license before you use any PLR you have purchased. For the most part, you'll probably find that most licenses allow you to change the material, resell it, give it away, use it on your website or blog, use it in email promotions, and most other common uses.

Usually you are not allowed to transfer the resale rights, private label rights, or master resale rights to others – but sometimes it may be allowed.

Besides written content, PLR is also sometimes available in audio, video, software, and website formats, but written content is definitely the most common type so we will focus on that for this report. (However, even if you have other PLR formats on your hard drive, you may still get some good ideas for using it for profit.)

Things You Need to Get Started

To start profiting from PLR content, you will need one or more of the following items:

#1 – A website or blog

Obviously, you will need a place to use the PLR content so people online can find it and buy it (if you are reselling an e-book or report), or buy the offers you will be promoting with the content (we'll be explaining this part in more detail later).

#2 – A mailing list and/or auto-responder

Having your own list isn't absolutely necessary, especially if you have a website or blog that you will use for promotion, but if you have a list of interested prospects, even better!

An auto-responder would come in handy because you could set up your promotions so they go out automatically on a timeline that you decide beforehand – like a 7-day e-course that sends one installment automatically each day. Again, an auto-responder is not necessary but definitely helpful.

#3 – PLR Content

Obviously, before you can profit from PLR you will need to buy some if you don't already have it. There are dozens of websites that sell PLR content, but some offer better quality than others. You may want to avoid places like auction sites where you can buy 100,000 PLR articles for 50 cents. Not only is the quality bound to be terrible; they've also probably been sold at least 100,000 times.

Instead, try to choose a provider that offers samples of their content so you can check the quality, or ask people you trust for PLR provider referrals.

#4 – Software and/or equipment

You may need some additional programs or equipment, depending on how you choose to profit from PLR content. We'll cover many of these options in more detail as we go along.

#5 – Creativity

More than anything else, you will need a bit of creative insight if you want to profit from PLR. It's true that you can buy a PLR product, slap it on your website and sell it "as-is" – and maybe even earn a fair amount of money from it. But your profits are bound to be bigger if you alter the products so they aren't identical to what everyone else out there is selling.

In order to make your products stand out, you'll need to be willing to put some thought into ways you can improve upon the original product. That may involve rewriting it, combining more than one product together into something completely new, or even using a new format than the content was originally presented in.

Don't worry; we'll be sharing plenty of good ideas to get your own creative juices flowing. Keep in mind that these ideas are just the tip of the iceberg too. Feel free to expand on our ideas and use them as stepping stones to even better ideas of your own.

How to Start Profiting from PLR Content

PLR Profit Tip #1 – Take Advantage of Good Quality

As we covered earlier, the quality of PLR content can vary widely. Some of it is little more than junk, with bad grammar and spelling errors galore. Some of it doesn't even make sense and was probably created using an article "spinner" that replaces key words with synonyms. That stuff isn't worth the pixels used to display it.
